

EDUCATION COMMITTEE NEWS

TIME TO CELEBRATE

Champions for Children Each and every one of you are a champion for children. However, every year we pick several individuals in the community who stand out. Education committee volunteer Sara King is this year's recipient of the outreach award.

Sara is flexible and game to try new approaches, audiences and environments. Sara's casual manner immediately builds rapport with the kids. She continually finds ways to answer students' questions in a way that promotes empowerment.

No matter what or where the event, we can count on Sara to be a friendly face of support. She shares many of our posts on social media and promotes our cause every chance she gets. We're lucky to have her on and by our side.

Please join us in celebrating your fellow volunteer, as well as other advocates in the community, this Wednesday, Oct. 23rd from 3-5 at Mike O'Shays in Longmont. RSVP HERE.

Attention Bakers

Out of the mouth....

When asked how Felty was feeling about ongoing unsafe touch from her dad a student replied

"unheard"

Impressive emotional intelligence from an 8 year old!

Curriculum update...

Thanks for embracing the changes we made to the curriculum this year. We know some of the days are running long.

- ◆ Many of the changes we made are in response to teacher feedback requesting more interaction, which naturally takes more time.
- ◆ Don't stress if you can't get to ALL the examples at the end.
- ◆ Since time is running close, keep an eye on signs from staff/liaison to speed it up.
- ◆ We've already identified changes and sections we will eliminate. Expect a new script for our January schools.
- ◆ Tell us if sections feel redundant, don't flow, or need work. It's through practice that we identify tricky spots.
